Students win 'dust bowl' battle

The Carmel High School student body, disgusted with a bare patch of campus land known as the "dust bowl," got it together last year and presented a plan for improvement to the Carmel Unified School District.

They suggested the 14,000 square feet area be paved and adorned with three adobe planters. Furthermore, a number of concerned students offered to lend muscle for a few Saturdays in preparation for the contractor.

The district accepted the proposal and agreed to foot the bill.

District Business Manager Walter Hinton credits local contractors with submitting extremely reasonable bids and several local businesses with supplying materials at cost.

"It was quite a joint venture between the district, students, faculty and people outside," said Hinton.

The new patio, located between Brey Hall, a classroom wing and the music building, is now 95 percent complete.

The district is waiting for school to begin to finish the project because the students are expected to take part in selecting planter vegetation.

Hinton credits the project with creating a greater social concern among students.

"Vandalism dropped off to nil once the kids were involved," he said.

THE DUST BOWL, no longer the shifting morass of mud and dust, provides a striking rest area for Carmel High School students. One large oak was preserved and the other planters will be stocked later with greenery.

THE DUST BOWL pictured before recent improvements, turned to dust during dry spells and to mud when the rains came. Care was taken to save the tree when the new patio was built.

City seeks applicants for Sunset manager

The Carmel Cultural Commission is now seeking applicants for the post of manager of Sunset Center.

Mrs. Dorothy Bowman, present manager, has been asked to resign, and has been offered the job of Program and Publicity Director by the city. At this writing, she had not announced whether she will accept the lesser post.

The commission announced it was seeking applicants at its regular meeting Monday night. In a prepared statement, the commission said the position "requires an unusual combination of cultural background and executive skills."

In addition to promotion of a varied year-round program of music, art and theater, and attention to the needs of the artists and artistic groups in residence, the manager is responsible for long-range planning, capital and operating budgets, maintenance and enhancement of facilities and similar business functions.

The commission requires that the applicant if "not trained in the arts should possess a deep understanding of them, and if not trained in business and economics, applicants should demonstrate experience with basic management techniques."

Sunset Center includes a handsome 750-seat auditorium with appropriate stage facilities, former classrooms converted to studios and offices, and larger rooms once used as a gymnasium and cafeteria. Forest Theater, the city's outdoor amphitheatre, is also under the direction of the Sunset manager. The budget for these operations is in part subsidized by the city.

Further information and application forms may be secured from the cultural commission at City Hall. Qualified candidates will be invited to interviews before the commission and the city council at their own expense.

The exact wording of the job description includes the following examples of work performance and skills that are expected:

Examples of Work

Schedules uses of available facilities, including the auditorium, and takes necessary steps to collect any rentals due therefor.

Supervises purchasing, budget control and fiscal planning for both facilities.

Supervises the maintenance and repair and use of the facilities and equipment.

Takes appropriate action to publicize and promote the maximum use of all facilities, in keeping with established policies.

Recommends to the City Council through the Carmel Cultural Commission on policy matters affecting the facilities and personnel under his supervision.

Prepares such reports as may be required by the Carmel Cultural Commission, the City Council and the City Administrator.

Serves as Secretary to the Carmel Cultural Commission and attends all meetings thereof, and attends such other meetings as may be required by the City Council or in the performance of his duties.

Cooperates with the public, private officials, other department heads, and users of the facilities.

Prepares the preliminary budget request for both facilities as well as for the activities of the Cultural Commission.

Prepares plans for and conducts fund-raising campaigns for projects approved by the City Council and the Carmel Cultural Commission.

Prepares brochures, publicity and news releases to attract users and patrons.

Negotiates contracts and agreements for use, for approval by or in accordance with established policies.

Plans, encourages, organizes and supervises community and cultural activities at Sunset Center and the Forest Theater.

Necessary Knowledges Skills, and Abilities

Working knowledge of the principles, practices and procedures of management.

Knowledge of theaters and auditoriums and the requirements of the various performing arts.

Ability to work cooperatively and effectively with the public, users of the various facilities, and employees and officials of the City.

Ability to plan, organize and direct the operation of a cultural facility.

SOMETHING AWFULLY NICE happens to people when Carmel is at its brilliant blue and gold best. People you never saw before smile at you. People who usually just smile—you don't know each other's names—may add "Good morning!" And people you know just well enough to exchange "Good mornings" with might ask "How are you?" too.

EWIG GET-TOGETHER

The Carmel home of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Ewig was the scene last Saturday of their first family reunion in five years. Their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Ewig from San Marino, with their daughter Gloria, and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Ewig of Carmel, with their daughters Valerie and Sharon, were others present.

Gordon, who graduated from Carmel High School, is now general manager of the Inglewood National Cemetery in Los Angeles. The Gordon Ewigs' son Randy was unable to join the rest of the family as he is making preparations to enter the University of Southern California.

Gloria Ewig, who graduated from the University of California at Santa Barbara last June, has just been accepted as an airline hostess.

Letters to the Editor

Sir:

I take this means of answering Mrs. Mary Horan's article dated August 17, 1970. I think that if Mrs. Horan had read the articles I had published in the past, relevent to Mrs. Bowman's status, her answer was clearly forwarded. However, so that the matter be cleared, I am answering Mrs. Horan's questions as printed.

Q. Why is Mrs. Bowman being fired? How has she failed to do her job?

A. Lack of administrative abilities.

Q. What are the job specifications?

A. The job specifications are available to anyone, part of city records.

Q. Was she given a copy of them before accepting the job?

A. Mrs. Bowman was given a copy along with all other applicants.

Q. Were they discussed with her? And by whom?

A. Mrs. Bowman received job specifications and same were explained to her by the City Administrator.

Q. Who is her official supervisor. Is he or she qualified to evaluate the work done?

A. Her chief supervisor is the City Council. Her immediate supervisor is the City Administrator, under the advise of the City Council and the Cultural Commission. They are well qualified to evaluate the work done.

Q. Is she being asked to do two irreconcilable jobs?

A. Job specifications spell out duties.

Q. Has Mrs. Bowman been given proper assistance and cooperation?

A. She has been given a part-time secretary, a stage manager, and has been relieved of the responsibilities of the janitorial, gardening and maintenance work, which was one of the sources of failure on which these actions were taken to fill the part that was lacking in administration, so as to allow her full-time to devote to her cultural duties.

Q. Have the Council and Mayor made every effort to help her to do her job for the benefit of all? Or are they just going along with the opinion of clerks and lesser officials?

A. The Council has conscientiously studied this matter and has followed the recommendations forwarded by the Carmel Cultural Commission.

Q. What is the opinion of the artistic community with which she works?

A. Mrs. Bowman enjoys support from some segments of the artistic community.

Q. Is this opposition because she makes "disturbing waves in quiet water?" And are we dealing here with petty personal politics?

A. The City Council as a whole, is a conscientious group of intelligent men. I doubt very much that they have the time to deal with or consider petty, personal politics. These are unpaid men trying to do a service for the community as a whole. I personally feel, and I am sure I reflect the thoughts of the other members of the Council that a very fair approach was made in trying to solve a rather difficult situation. It is well to remember that all city employees are on a one year probationary basis and had the Council not tried to give Mrs. Bowman the benefit of the doubt by offering her a second choice, it could have terminated her employment without as much as a hearing.

In closing, I would like to mention that I welcome "constructive criticism" but that anyone wishing to challenge or present their views better get the facts straight first.

California-American Water Company
Monterey, California

Gentlemen:

The natives are getting restless. It has, after all, been eight months since you announced that Cachagua Valley is considered among the four sites which would provide storage of water sufficient for the entire Peninsula.

In the lifetime of a rancher, dependent on short term notes from the bank, or the "trapped" land owner, whose land is effectively frozen in value and made virtually unsalable, these are very long days.

Surely, by now there must be some indication as to the site potentially best for your purposes. Aerial surveys are completed, and hydrological data must by now be processed by your engineers, who have proven so efficient in the past.

Continued delays in revealing your plans can only spell hardship for those whose future is so clearly in your hands. If test borings are not started soon, winter rains and high waters might very possibly delay that phase of your data collection for another two seasons.

Other vital matters, such as the County Road Departments' plan for repair of the Carmel Valley Road East of the Los Tulares subdivision, are directly affected by your ability to act at this time. As winter approaches, the County will find it necessary to spend an estimated $150,000.00 on a roadway which would be innundated, should you use the so-called "Klondike Site". It seems unfair to the taxpayers of Monterey County to allow such expensive improvement on a road which might ultimately be lost.

In all, what the California-American Water Company does (or fails to do) concerns not only the Cachagua property owners, but your subscribers, and all County taxpayers, as well.

Sincerely,
MARY H. GAYMAN

the mayor's report

By BARNEY LAIOLO

Last week the Administration Committee authorized the use of the Sunset Auditorium to a group of rock bands. This request came from the Cultural Commission and was forwarded to the Committee in proper order. Use of the auditorium was granted based on some parental supervision, a time limit and furnishing of marshalls.

I attended this performance Saturday night and must say that I have great praise for the management and final result of this group under the direction of Bob Stanton. This young man is just beginning his career in this field and his approach warrants recognition.

This group as a whole was very cooperative, enjoyed their music, and acted in a very orderly fashion. I mention this for one reason. Basically, I feel that this type of entertainment is good and reassuring and fills a need for our youth. I can see no problems arising from supporting these performances and creating a better understanding of youth in this so-called generation gap. I was proud to be a part of the action and although my ears were ringing for awhile after the performance, I found nothing but praise for the producer and audience. It is my hope that we will be able to continue more performances on the same basis.

Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Gerry Reeves, chairman of the Beethoven Festival, which is Carmel's part of the Bicentennial, had a get together of many of the people connected with this project. Dr. and Mrs. Taueber, Dr. and Mrs. Gilman, Mr. and Mrs. Hughes, Miss Gurley, Miss Adams and many others attended.

This was a meeting of interested and working citizens doing their part in presenting what I know will be a great performance at the Carmel Mission on the 17th of October. I am certain that the community will turn out for this occasion and support this very fine program of music and chorus. I would recommend that those interested buy their tickets early.

The following is a letter just received:

"Dear Mayor Laiolo: In connection with the fire at the 'Braemar' house on San Antonio Friday night, August 21, I wanted you and the other city officials to know that the Carmel Fire Department did a superb job.

"They arrived almost immediately after receiving my call. They worked very rapidly and with great efficiency. They were very careful and very thorough. They left nothing to chance and left the scene only after insuring in every way possible that no further hazard remained.

"Their demeanor toward the occupants and the spectators was very calm, polite and efficient.

"They arrived about 10:30 p.m. and did not leave until around midnight. The entire operation was, I understand, under the direct supervision of your Fire Chief, Robert Updike.

"All in all they did a magnificent job and I thought you and all others concerned should certainly know about it. You can indeed be proud of your Fire Department. The people of Carmel are in excellent hands and are as safe and secure as anyone anywhere else in the world.

"My congratulations to you, and our very deep gratitude to your Fire Department, and particularly to Chief Updike and his men for Friday night's tremendous job.

Sincerely,
R. Henry

Joan Baez to appear at Oct. 3 folk festival

Joan Baez, a Big Sur Folk Festival founder, will play at this year's event Oct. 3 at the Monterey County Fairgrounds.

Tickets for "Celebration," as the seventh annual festival is called, are scheduled to go on sale within a week at Friar Tuck Books, Sixth and Mission, and other Peninsula locations.

The names of other performers will not be released because of a need to mute publicity, Nancy Carlen, festival director, said last week.

Pattee Arena, site of the festival, seats only 7,000 people.

Negotiations are underway, however, with more than a dozen of the most well-known folk singers and groups.

SYMPHONY AUDITIONS

Auditions for newcomers to Monterey County or musicians who have not played in past seasons and wish to join the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra conducted by Haymo Taeuber are scheduled for Wednesday, 2 - 5 p.m. and 7 - 9 p.m., Room 9 Sunset Cultural Center, Carmel.

Auditions are open to all who feel qualified to play in the orchestra. For further information call the symphony office, 624-4125, or Mr. Taeuber at 375-3709.

Carmel High tunes up for 1970 football season

Practice began Monday for 36 boys who turned out for the Carmel High School football team.

Head coach Jason Harbert characterized the team as "short on depth in the backfield" but advanced hopes the Padres would become contenders.

The team will scrimmage Sept. 5 at Red and Gray Jamboree at Bardarson Field and will play their first game Sept. 11 in the Carmel-Pacific Grove-Moralla Jamboree in Pacific Grove.

The Benchwarmers Club hosts a barbecue at the Red and Gray Jamboree following the game.

Carmel plays non-league games Sept. 18 and 26 against Alisal and Woodrow Wilson before tackling its first league opponent, Palma, in Salinas.

Carmel finished fifth in the eight-member Mission Trails Athletic League last year.

Harbert pointed out that teams traditionally in the league cellar -- Palma, Gonzales and Moralla – last year captured the first three places.

"It's a good league," he said. "Not a patsy in there. If any team has an edge it's Palma. They have a lot of returning lettermen."

Harbert listed in order of strength among league opponents from toughest to weakest: Palma (finished second last year), Gonzales (1), Moralla (3), King City (7), Pacific Grove (6) and Hollister (4).

LETTERMEN

Carmel has eight lettermen returning: Jim Conlan, quarterback, a senior who weighs 166 pounds; Jim DeAmaral, fullback, senior, 212; Mark Belangee, halfback, senior, 175; Hans Smith, end, senior, 170; Rick Bowen, tackle, senior, 242; Fred Nason, tackle, senior, 195; Al Harbert, guard, senior, 173; Jon Fletcher, guard, senior, 167.

Joining the squad from Pendleton, Oregon, is Steve Hiaasen, tackle, senior, 195.

Up from the junior varsity come: Tony Crivello, quarterback, senior, 140; Joe Carter, halfback, senior, 156; Steve Wilson, halfback, senior, 150; Greg Korver, halfback, senior, 148.

At guard: Jim Aran, senior, 158; Buck Patton, senior, 162; Sandy Sanford, senior, 151; Homer Lightfall, senior, 175; Gary Cummings, senior, 146.

Completing the team from last year's freshmen team are Jerry Argust, halfback, 162, and Paul Shabrum, fullback, 165.

Dick Charles and Monte Feekes complete the varsity coaching staff.

Harbert is coaching the varsity team for his second year. He previously coached varsity basketball and junior varsity football.

Carmel's four home games are played at Bardarson Field on Saturdays. The freshmen play at 10:30 a.m., junior varsity at 12:30 p.m. and varsity at 2:30 p.m.

Spectators have made a tradition of spending the mid-day picnicking at the stadium.

Twice-a-day varsity practices -- at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. -- continue until the start of school, Sept. 2.

The junior varsity met coaches Dick Lawitzke and Bob Brooks for equipment checkout Saturday while Howard Sanborn and Lowell Battcher meet the freshmen squad this Saturday.

KLEPICH PREPS FOR USMA

Private John P. Klepich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony D. Klepich of Carmel, is attending the U.S. Military Academy Preparatory School at Fort Belvoir, Va.

With 274 other cadet candidates, John last week began 10 months of instruction, emphasizing English and mathematics, physical and military training, to assist him in qualifying for an appointment to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y.

Young Klepich, a 1970 graduate of Junipero Serra Memorial High School, was selected on the basis of aptitude tests, motivation, education background.

The River School Parent-Faculty Club is sponsoring a get-acquainted coffee hour for all parents with children enrolled at the school in the school cafeteria Wednesday, from 9-10:30 a.m.

Carmel's 11th gas station:

Mobil station approved

The Carmel Planning Commission yesterday approved an application for the construction of an 8,000 square-foot Mobil gas station on the corner of Fifth and Junipero, with several limiting conditions.

The controversial proposal was turned down by the city planners two months ago when the oil company requested permission to build a 10,000 square-foot station.

The site includes several small buildings housing the General Store, a health food store, and the Forge in the Forest, and others. These will be razed to make room for Carmel's eleventh gas station.

There was considerable discussion of a proposed ordinance that would limit the number of gas stations in the city, but it was agreed that the application could not be denied under existing law.

Limitations imposed by the commission included limiting the site to two driveways; and assuring that the existing living trees on the property will be maintained, and that any request for removal of trees would be subject to design review by the city.

The lone dissenting vote was cast by commissioner Roberts who voted "no", she said, in view of the considerable public dismay expressed over the project.

The city hopes to persuade Mobil to demolish the present Mobil station on San Carlos and Seventh once the new station is in operation.

In other action, the commission turned down an application by J.D. Patterson to change the zoning previously granted for nine single-family residences on the "sand dune property" on San Antonio, near Ocean.

Patterson's request would have abolished the lot lines and permitted construction of an 11-unit condominium. Commissioners expressed their disapproval of the proposal, stating that the condominium concept was not in keeping with the desired appearance and use of the property.

CORRECTION

"A thing of beauty is a job forever," said a famed Romantic poet. It really was not a tough job to translate "joy" to "job" in the Pine Cone's school board story on August 13.

President Richard Wilsdon was quoted as saying "It's a job to be able to extend this (Supt. Taylor's) contract." He really meant, of course, that it was a joy.

School board adopts new drug program

The Carmel school board last night decided to drop a mandatory, "crash course" approach to drug education in favor of a many-faceted program to include specialized training for all staff members, adult education for parents and an elective course on drugs at Carmel Middle School.

Board members agreed with Assistant Superintendent James Halcomb that a new approach is needed after hearing a discouraging evaluation of the Lockheed drug course given to all students in the seventh, eighth and ninth grades last spring.

After 18 hours of classroom instruction, including the use of films, texts and simulation devices, Lockheed's own tests showed that students had gained very little in factual knowledge and that attitudes had remained virtually unchanged.

On Lockheed's test scale, student reaction to the course was barely positive for the seventh grade, and slightly negative for the eighth grade. Halcomb said that the reaction of teachers to the program was somewhat mixed, but that most said they would prefer not to be involved with the course again.

The district's new, wide-ranging program was worked out this summer by John Frykman, the district's community counselor, Richard Hawkins, director of student personnel services, and the school administration.

Basically, it will encompass these areas:

(1) Frykman will teach an elective course the first hour of the day at Middle School. The course will run for two weeks, and will be repeated continually through the year, to allow as many students as wish a chance to take it.

(2) All staff members -- principals, teachers, custodians, bus drivers and even school board members -- will meet with Frykman in small groups for two hours for a presentation on drugs and how to assist students who have problems.

(3) Starting Sept. 22 at 7:30 p.m. in Brey Hall, Frykman will start a series of four Tuesday night courses on drugs for parents and other interested adults in the community.

(4) It is expected there will also be special in-depth training sessions just for counselors at the Middle School and High School.

(5) The Monterey and Pacific Grove school districts have been approached about Peninsula-wide efforts in the drug field, and Frykman and Hawkins have been named to represent the Carmel school district in working on details of such a program.

If students show an interest, Frykman may also teach an elective drug course at the high school.

"We're moving on many fronts now, and I think that's the only way," Supt. of Schools Harris Taylor told the board. "It takes a more diffuse effort ... It's not as neat (as the prepared Lockheed program), but neatness is not effectiveness."

Taylor emphasized that Frykman will have several ways in evaluate this broad approach, and that by next spring it should be possible to see if it has proved effective.

Carmel to lose 80-foot pine

The Carmel Forestry Commission has authorized removal of a structurally defective pine tree in front of the Carmel Foundation on the east side of Lincoln between Eighth and Ninth Avenues.

Commission members Bernard Anderson, Sinclair Kerby-Miller and Dr. Raymond Taylor recommended the cut after recently visiting the stricken plant with city forester Robert Tate.

A cavity 30 feet above the ground had developed unnoticed, rotting out at least two-thirds of the inner wood, said Tate.

The forester speculated the cavity resulted from an old wound such as the loss of a limb.

The 80-foot tree is still green and the damage is not apparent from the street, but Tate asked that the tree be brought down now rather than risk a future possible collapse.

The pine will be replaced, probably by a spreading tree like a coast live oak, said Tate.

In other action, the commission rejected a plan to replace a blackwood acacia and oaks with red-flowering eucalyptus on the northeast corner of Sixth and Junipero.

They also rejected a request by Mrs. John F. Powers, Jr., to remove a black locust from city property at the northwest corner of Rio Road and Santa Lucia.

Mrs. Powers said the tree's aggressive sucker growth was threatening her property.

The commission postponed until next month's meeting selection of a new commission chairman and consideration of recommendations for a new forestry commissioner.

The postponement was taken in order to present the matters to the commission at full attendance.

AFTERNOON CONCERT

An afternoon concert will be presented in the All Saints' Episcopal Sanctuary Wednesday at 2:30, by a group of Hidden Valley Music Seminar students. The public is welcome.

The concert has been especially arranged by Mrs. Helen Shutes of Carmel, who serves as Carmel Foundation's music chairman, for those of the music-loving public who no longer find it possible to attend evening concerts.

Following the concert at All Saints', located on Dolores at Ninth, tea will be served by Carmel Foundation at Town House, half a block away on Lincoln below Eighth.

Petpourri

BY JUDITH EISNER

Here in Carmel and its environs where most of us live in one-family homes with private yards and gardens, rabbit-keeping is a popular hobby. To thousands of boys and girls who raise them, rabbits certainly rank as satisfactory pets.

Rabbits are members of the rodent family which includes in addition to rats and mice, squirrels, chipmunks and chinchillas. They have many characteristics in common with other rodents, but have many unique and charming characteristics all their own.

Rabbits are known for their docility and for their lack of natural defenses. In a wild state, a rabbit depends on his keen senses to alert him to danger and on his speedy little legs to carry him to the protection of the nearest burrow.

Under domestic conditions, rabbits must be artificially protected from danger, and building adequate quarters is one of the most important concerns of anyone wishing to keep them.

Although they are marvelously attractive to babies, rabbits are not recommended as pets for very young children. The practice of giving baby bunnies as Easter gifts is really a cruel one, for the majority of these soft babies do not long survive. Rabbits require gentle and careful handling; they cannot tolerate roughness or abuse.

If you are contemplating the purchase of a rabbit, you must decide whether it is to become a true pet or merely a small animal in a cage. Although not nearly as intelligent as dogs or cats, rabbits do respond to kindness and affection. They learn to recognize their owner and to enjoy petting and fondling. However, turning a rabbit into a pet requires that you take it from its quarters (called a hutch) regularly and expose it to humans and common household situations. You cannot confine a rabbit for six days a week and expect it to be friendly and unafraid on the seventh day.

Magicians and fairy tales notwithstanding, rabbits should never be picked up by the ears. Their ears are extremely delicate and sensitive and should not be used as handles. Like kittens, puppies and a multitude of small animals, they should be lifted with both hands, one hand under the weight of the body to support it, the other used to steady the animal.

A good diet for rabbits is inexpensive and varied. Commercially prepared rabbit pellets should always be available, as should an untippable dish of clean, fresh water. Rabbits relish clover and alfalfa, as well as almost every green, leafy vegetable. Lettuce of all kinds, beet tops, carrot and turnip greens are appreciated, as are parsley and cabbage. Rabbits' teeth grow continuously all their lives and they must be provided with things to gnaw to keep the teeth worn down.

For this purpose, as well as for nutrition, feed carrots, turnips and bulky root vegetables. Rabbits also like green twigs and bark and will, if not provided with sufficient chewing material, eat away at the wooden parts of their hutch.

When offering greenstuff to your bunny, wet it thoroughly with cold water first. Rabbits take in a good percentage of their water requirement from these greens; but they still must have additional water available.

Their only other requirements are for shelter and protection from enemies.

Although rabbits are fairly hardy little creatures, they must have shelter from rain and wind if they are to survive. One of the biggest killers of pet bunnies is pneumonia brought on by exposure to damp and draft.

Within the wire confines of their quarters, you should build a snug, draft-free sleeping box which is raised off the ground. You can provide straw for nesting material. The box should be built with easy accessibility in mind, for it must be cleaned throughly and regularly.

Although rabbits can be kept in small cages, ideally they should have an area large enough for them to exercise in. You can build a wire mesh pen around their sleeping hutch; a three foot by six foot enclosure is ample for two full-grown rabbits. The enclosure should be roofed over with wire or be tall enough to discourage animals from jumping in and going rabbit hunting, and the wire should be sunk 18 inches below the ground to keep Bunny in and predators out.

Rabbits are preyed upon by dogs, cats and hawks; don't think the neighbor's cat is going to realize that your pet bunny is different from the wild ones in the fields. Since your rabbit has no fighting ability, you must see to it that he is safe and secure in his home.

Rabbits come in different breeds, many of them quite lovely and exotic-looking. Angora rabbits require grooming just as "angora" cats do; there is a rabbit that looks like a Siamese cat, sporting the same dark points; there is the comical lop-eared variety, whose large ears flop over to the sides, and many broken-colored varieties, whose coats are patches of two colors. Whatever your selection, they are all equally charming as pets and equally responsive to kind treatment.

In choosing a rabbit, it should be remembered that they are extremely prolific! Unless you want baby bunnies with distressing regularity, and are certain of finding homes for them it is best not to buy a male and female, but to select a pair of the same sex—preferrably females. If you do want to breed bunnies, the male and female (buck and doe) will have to be housed separately, with the doe being brought to the buck for breeding.

DOROTHY'S ADVENTURES

Mrs. Julian von Meier has had a number of European trips, but the six-week jaunt from which she recently returned had some non-routine features.

She met her 19-year-old granddaughter Erin McKinney, also the granddaughter of Dr. and Mrs. Carol McKinney of Carmel, in London, England. Erin was traveling with an Oxford group, but splintered off for travel time with Grandma Dorothy.

While the two were exploring Salisbury Cathedral late one afternoon, Dorothy remarked, "It seems awfully quiet. Do you suppose it's closed?"

"Oh, no, the sign says it's always open," Erin brushed this aside. The quiet continued, and they realized they were the only visitors. They tried the door—sure enough, they were locked in.

They decided breaking stained glass windows just isn't done, and had settled down to map another escape course when the curator returned.

"I just had a feeling not everyone was out," he said. The travelers were so relieved they forgot to ask why the sign said Salisbury Cathedral was always open.

Mrs. von Meier visited her son Kurt in Berlin, and while there was taken for a ride on a lake in a rowboat by Kurt's five-year-old daughter, an excellent oarsman. But apparently not as good at tying knots. She wanted her grandmother and cousin Erin to see a bird nesting refuge on a small island in the lake. Instead of beaching the rowboat, she tied the painter to a tree. As Dorothy stepped off the boat, it and the tree parted company. She went into five feet of water—a non-swimmer, five feet tall. Erin rescued her, of course.

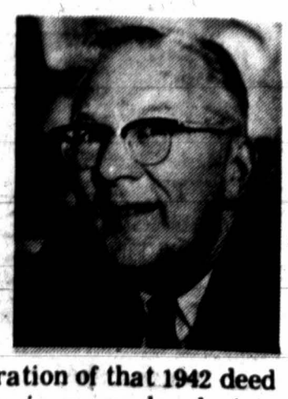
the conscience of Carmel

Keeping the faith with Boy Scouts



BY GUNNAR NORBERG

NEARLY 40 YEARS AGO, a Carmel businessman put a piece of his property in trust to be used then, and forevermore, by and for Carmel Boy Scouts. His name was Louis Levinson, and for a good many years he personified local scouting. The property, known ever since 1931 as the Carmel Boy Scout House, is located at the corner of Mission and 8th. The original trustees were Levinson himself and the late Otto Bardarson, a huge and happy Icelander, who was local school superintendent at the time.

Now another selfless man-of-all-work in scouting is trying to see to it that Levinson's original intent is continued unimpaired into the future. His name is John Martin, and he is the long-time scoutmaster of Carmel Boy Scout Troop No. 86, one of the two troops now using the Carmel Boy Scout House. He is also an executive board member of the Monterey Bay Area Boy Scout Council, and a member of the committee recently directed by that Council "to proceed with negotiations regarding the Carmel Boy Scout House until a satisfactory conclusion is reached".

Why any negotiations? Why can't things go on as they have for nearly four decades? And just what is the "satisfactory" conclusion being sought?

Before trying to answer those questions, it's going to be necessary to take a look at the terms of the trust deed which now covers the Carmel Boy Scout House. It isn't that first one -- which was dated Feb. 18, 1931 and which named Levinson and Bardarson as trustees -- but a later one dated Feb. 10, 1942 which made Carmel American Legion Post No. 512 the trustee. The purpose of this 1942 deed was to convey the trustee relationship to a local tax-exempt institution instead of leaving it in the hands of two individuals, and to identify the Boy Scout entity being served in an appropriate legal way.

THE 1931 DEED had said the trustees were to act for the "Boy Scouts of America of Carmel, California", even though there was no legally recognizable entity so named.

The 1942 deed said the new trustee, the local American Legion post, "... shall permit the Monterey Bay Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America to use and occupy the premises at all times for the legitimate purposes of Boy Scout work ..." (This made everything legal since there was, and there is, a legal entity called the Monterey Bay Area Boy Scout Council to which the two Carmel Boy Scout troops belong).

In addition to specifying that "intoxicating beverages shall never be sold upon the premises" of the Carmel Boy Scout House, the 1942 trust deed also provided that all expenses "of maintenance and upkeep ... and repair" as well as fire insurance and public liability insurance and "all taxes levied ... by any taxing authority" were always to be paid by "said Monterey Bay Area Council of the Boy Scouts".

AS YOU CAN SEE, the trust deed therefore indicated that the main user of the premises, the Bay Area scout council, was to pay all bills of whatever kind, and the local American Legion post was to pay none of them.

Here you might ask why Levinson and Bardarson, back in 1942, conveyed their trust deed to the local American Legion post instead of directly to the Monterey Bay Area Boy Scout Council whose scout troops were to be the principal users of the Carmel Boy Scout House.

The reason, according to the late Corum Jackson, who said he had had much to do with the preparation of that 1942 deed and who had been active all his life in many local civic organizations including the American Legion, was to "see to it that the Carmel Boy Scout House would always be there for Carmel kids, interested in scouting, to use as far ahead into the future as anybody could see".

When I talked with Herbert Brownell, who was the commander of the Carmel Legion post at the time of that 1942 deed and who signed that deed on behalf of the Legion, he said Jackson's description of the purpose of the deed was essentially the same as his own. Jackson's description also accords with the recollection of Carmel attorney Shelburn Robison who notarized the 1942 deed to the Legion, and who said he had had a hand in drafting it.

Because Jackson, Brownell, Robison, and others interested in scouting in Carmel, wanted to "see to it that the Carmel Boy Scout House would always be there" for future Carmel scouts to use, they encouraged conveyance of the trust deed to the local Legion post instead of to the Bay Area Boy Scout Council.

Why? Because it had become national Boy Scout policy to sell any real estate that came into scout hands, and thus it seemed likely that any conveyance of title to the Carmel Scout House to the Area Scout Council would simply have led to sale of the property. And thus, the original intent -- use by Carmel scouts in perpetuity -- would have been defeated.

NOW LET'S GO BACK to those original questions and see what the answers might be. And that gets us right back to John Martin, today's man-of-all-work in local scouting, and then to the "negotiations" he and his scout committee have just been directed to pursue until a "satisfactory conclusion" with regard to the Carmel Scout House is reached. And to just why any "negotiations" have to take place at all -- merely to leave things about as they are for Carmel scouts.

As in the case of so many other matters nowadays, taxes are at the root of the Scout House problem. Some seven or eight years ago, the State Board of Equalization ordered Monterey County Assessor Donald Stewart to assess property taxes on the Carmel Scout House. This was done because the tax-exempt status of the trustee -- the American Legion -- had been removed. In the beginning the local American Legion post first resisted this and then tried to scrape up funds to pay the taxes.

However, as you have seen, the 1942 deed to the Carmel Boy Scout House made the Monterey Bay Area Scout Council responsible for any taxes which might ever accrue. As this is written, County Tax Collector Orville Molmen says taxes for the past two fiscal years (1968-70) are now long past due ($1,166.92) and paying such taxes would be a heavy burden on scout council resources.

And that is why there are "negotiations" now and why a "satisfactory" end to those negotiations have to be reached.

THIS IMMEDIATELY LEADS us to a provision in the 1942 trust deed -- not so far mentioned -- which at least points the way to what many consider the right solution to the "negotiations" and thus a "satisfactory" end to them.

The 1942 deed said that, if any of its "conditions" were at any time to be "breached", the title to the Carmel Boy Scout House would "pass to and be vested in, the City of Carmel".

Nowadays the tax-exempt status of many once tax-exempt organizations such as the American Legion, has either been removed or is under increasingly close scrutiny. At the same time, there is no question at all about the tax exemption of municipalities such as the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea. Thus, if the trust deed to the Carmel Boy Scout House were to be conveyed to the City, there could be no taxes assessed upon it or collected for it.

And if the City of Carmel, once it had the deed, were to "keep the faith" with the original donor, and with the trustees through the past four decades, use of the Carmel Boy Scout House by future Carmel scouts in perpetuity, could continue to be maintained. And a site dedicated to the building of character, would survive.

If you believe as John Martin says a consensus of the Monterey Bay Area Scout Council executive board members do, that "the best solution for the Carmel Boy Scout House is to vest the title in the City of Carmel", let your Carmel City Councilmen know, for they are the ones who would have to be willing to accept the trust deed to the Scout house if it were to be offered.

If you are a Carmel legionaire, let your officers know what you think. And if you want scouting in Carmel to continue to have a home, give John Martin's Bay Area Scout Council committee a hand in the "negotiations" they have initiated, and help that committee reach the "satisfactory" conclusion it seeks.

Cultural commission urges priority for Sunset maintenance, repair work

The Cultural Commission, expressing its "deep concern" for the physical condition of Sunset Center, has provided the City Council with a priority list "to assure proper maintenance and restoration of Sunset Center."

The commission acted unanimously at its regular monthly meeting Monday night. It asked the council to approve the funding of adequate money for additional maintenance personnel, supplies and required contracts to perform the needed work.

In a resolution to the council, the commission declared it has "come to the conclusion that building maintenance, minor remodelling and refurbishment must take number one priority with relation to funds provided for Sunset Center by the city budget."

The council is expected to take action on the resolution at its next regular meeting in September.

The list of work recommended follows:

1. Paint entire exterior of building, most of interior, patio benches and all iron railings.
2. Repair or replace gutters and down spouts and roof.
3. Repair dry rot condition on all columns, San Carlos Street porch.
4. Rehabilitation of rest rooms.
5. Repair or replace doors and sash before painting.
6. Repair or replace hardware and thresholds.
7. Repair or replace floors as required.
8. Remove and install new fence at Mission Street.
9. Correct leaks through concrete foundation walls.
10. Correct deficiencies in electrical and mechanical systems.
11. Enclosing the north porch to provide functional control of building.
12. Double-deck gymnasium area.

S.P.C.A. DIRECTOR TO SPEAK THURS.

Mrs. Gwendolyn May will be the speaker at the next regular luncheon meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Welcome Wagon Club at Rancho Del Monte, Country Club Drive, Carmel Valley next Thursday, Sept. 3 at 1 p.m.

The luncheon will be preceded by a social hour at 12:30.

Mrs. May is executive director of the Monterey County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Anyone new to the area is welcome to attend.

Please call Mrs. L. V. Hanna at 375-0672 for reservations by Monday.

CHILDBIRTH FILMS

"The Story of a Birth" and "Natural Childbirth," films presented by the Childbirth Education League, will be shown free of charge at the Monterey Public Library Sept. 4 at 8 p.m. A discussion led by Mrs. Joan Coppens follows.

Further questions about the league's ongoing prenatal classes can be obtained by calling Mrs. Alan McMasters at 375-1309.

Remember When?

50 YEARS AGO

From the Pine Cone, Aug. 26, 1920:

The local public school will open on Tuesday, September 7, with three teachers. In anticipation of a large attendance Miss Florence Day has been engaged, who with Miss Mary Powers and Miss Mai Guichard will make up the teaching staff.

Have you subscribed for the Pine Cone? Three months for 40 cents.

xxx

Mrs. Jay Egarton, her daughters, Floyd Adams and Walter Egarton are off on a fruit-picking trip in Santa Clara county. They may be away several months.

25 YEARS AGO

From the Pine Cone, Aug. 31, 1945:

Mrs. Paul Beygrau is as startled as her friends at the performance of her Formosa Lily which has put up a stem fifteen feet high from which hang, chandelier fashion, 107 blossoms and buds.

10 YEARS AGO

From the Pine Cone, Aug. 25, 1960:

Carmel attorney Charles A. Stewart will serve as co-chairman with Mayor Arthur C. Atteridge of Salinas for Senator John F. Kennedy's Presidential campaign in Monterey County.

xxx

Nine veterans from last year's championship team are expected to greet Coach George Mosolf when the varsity hits the turf for the first time next Wednesday. Back for another year of duty with the Red & Gray are quarterback Frank Mayo, one of the league's top runners in 1959; halfbacks Mike Draper, Mike Taylor and Bill Coleman; tackles John and Chris Wilkin, both with two seasons of varsity competition behind them; center Paul Rice, the top linebacker in the league last season; and ends Mike Dunham and Doyle Clayton.

the business scene in Carmel

Why our parking problem is a blessing

By JAMES PETER COST
President, Carmel Business Assn.

AS WAS EXPECTED, the response to the two columns on parking has been plentiful and sometimes slightly excited. I am grateful so many people are reading the column.

I want to remind you the Carmel Business Association Parking Committee has a nearly-finished plan that will be proposed to the city. At the present time we are still doing some research and getting as many ideas, views, opinions and reactions as possible. There is still plenty of time to make changes, but the bulk of the work has been done. Something will be forthcoming eventually.

Some of the remarks have been pretty funny. Katey Hunter says she fully expects the traffic in Carmel to just congeal someday. I visualized a giant chrome-plated mold shaped like a car shimmering like Jello.

Josephine Field said she recommends that if you see a parking space in town grab it first, then think of something to do. Someone, whose name I will not mention, suggested that if I think there are more parking spaces than cars, I am probably driving to the wrong town each morning. There are other remarks I am still trying to interpret.

Most of the comments I've heard revolve around the question "If you think the parking problem is such a blessing why are you trying so hard to solve it?" Let me say first that if we did not have a parking problem in Carmel, the very same guys who are out trying to solve this one would be out trying to create one.

There was a feature article in one of the Sunday supplements recently on how to attract tourists to your town. Did you ever notice gas stations sometimes park empty cars in service lanes to appear busy? Parking is a desirable problem.

I WILL ADMIT the whole thing is a bit confusing, and at first glance there appears to be a dichotomy of thought. Maybe there is, but what I am really saying is we are happy to have all these cars here but what on earth are we going to do with them?

I suppose there are many reasons for wanting to solve the problem. The obvious one, of course, is to find a place to park. That certainly is not the important one. There is one basic underlying, all-important reason for wanting to solve the problem—that is to improve business.

If we keep that one thought in mind we will quickly discard nearly all the immediate solutions and the problem becomes more difficult.

There are, of course, many ways of improving business in Carmel. Solving the parking situation is just one of them but the one we are most concerned with right now. It gains its importance not because it is so serious (it is not) but because it is so visible and because it touches all of us.

If just parking our cars was the real problem, the solution would be readily at hand. We don't want to have to walk too far, and that is a complication, but not an important one. Anything within a couple of blocks would be fine if we could park all day.

Parking all day is a serious complication but not an unsolvable one.

A great deal of our difficulty results from the tremendously important fact that we are trying to solve the problem within a uniquely restricting framework. Most of us realize the importance of not changing the character of the town.

Finding a place for all the cars to park would be simplified considerably if we did not care about high rise garages, malls and acres of asphalt. Changing the character of the town would go a long way toward providing a solution to the parking problem but keep in mind the underlying objective is to improve business.

PROVIDING PARKING AND improving business could not be more closely related but the solution to the one is not necessarily the solution to the other. I intentionally use the word improve here rather than increase because I firmly believe increasing business may not improve it. I also believe increasing the number of cars will not necessarily increase or improve business. Making room for more cars may create problems far more serious than parking.

For example, if an increase in volume precipitates a decrease in quality the end result could be a loss in business rather than a gain. Is it better to sell 50 pairs of pants at $10 or 10 pairs of pants at $50? How about 50 pairs of pants at $50? We do have a choice at this point.

We do not want to lose our quality shoppers and that danger is not unreal. Most of our local and nearby residents and their visitors are quality shoppers.

I know there is considerable individual variation here but roughly 40 percent of the city's business comes from local and nearby residents and their visitors. For a large number of businesses in town, the percentage is sizeably higher. It follows, about 60 percent of our business is tourist in nature. Each year the percentage seems to shift toward the tourist.

DIFFICULTY IN PARKING tends to discourage local resident business and encourage tourist-oriented business. Casual visitors may just pass through town without stopping if they are unable to find a parking space but chances are anyone who makes a special trip to visit Carmel would park someplace before going on.

Overnight motel guests leave their cars in the motel parking lots and (bless them) walk into town.

Visitors staying with local residents either walk, get a ride with their hosts or are informed of where to park. Previous visitors to Carmel are aware of the parking problem and are able to cope with it. The majority of parking spaces not taken by local businessmen and their employees will be filled by daytime tourists who must play musical chairs with the business people.

Local residents, usually quick-stop shoppers, make a fast pass through town looking for a parking space then go on to where they know they will find parking.

As a result of all this, many businesses become tourist-oriented especially in the summer.

A GOOD MANY of our most charming shops remain oriented to local shoppers but many, many others are changing in order to survive.

As the town becomes more tourist-oriented it tends to lose its natural charm and quaintness. As it loses its charm, it loses some of its best visitors and customers.

One of the main reasons we want to solve the parking problem is to encourage local and nearby residents to shop here. If local people shop here, the town retains its charm. The charm attracts quality visitors and that improves business.

Let me make it perfectly clear. I do not mean anything derogatory about our tourists and visitors. They are the best. But if the town becomes more commercialized or tourist-oriented, we could lose the sensitive, quality tourist and that would be bad.

And that, team, is why I think we should solve the parking problem even if it is a blessing, but not too much.

CARMEL MISSION

A commemorative high mass for Father Junipero Serra will take place at the regular 12:30 p.m. mass Sunday at Carmel Mission Basilica.

Dr. Harry A. Clinch, bishop of the Monterey Diocese, will attend and participate in the observance.

Father Salvador Parisi, O.F.M., will be in charge of the service. He is a Franciscan as was Father Serra, the early California founder of Monterey.

Music will be provided by the Mission Choir under the direction of Mary Ann Geddes. Benedito Geddes, Mrs. Geddes' husband, will play organ accompaniment.

A steak barbecue will follow from 2-3:30 p.m. at Carmel Mission; $4.50 a plate tickets are available at the barbecue.

The public is invited to attend both mass and barbecue.

The day's events are being held under the auspices of the Serra International Club of the Monterey Peninsula, a group of Roman Catholic professional men who interview and encourage local area youth to enter the priesthood.

General chairman is Kirby Low, head chef is John Perry, the committee includes James Lang, Dr. Gerald Martin, Phil Coniglio and Francis Sparolini.

PRESBYTERIAN

Dr. George Hunter Hall, pastor of Carmel Presbyterian Church, will deliver the sermons "Hearing and Doing" at the 9:15 a.m. service and "Can You Take It?" at the 11 a.m. service Sunday.

The church welcomes Timothy White as new director of Chancel and Bell Choirs this fall.

White is a graduate of the University of Omaha in 1965, with a masters degree in sacred music from Union Seminary in 1968.

He has studied conducting with Thomas Dunn, Abraham Kaplan and John Miller and has studied composition with Joseph Goodman.

He was director of music at the First United Methodist Church in Champaign, Ill., a church of 4,000 members, prior to his being drafted into the army in 1968.

He is at Fort Ord to be released later this year.

White invites all in the community who wish to participate in the music program to come to rehearsals Thurdays at 7:30 p.m.

Vacationing Assistant Pastor Keith Jackson is expected back from vacation at the end of the month.

COMMUNITY CHURCH

"Bridge to Heaven" is the subject of the Rev. Howard E. Bull's 10:30 a.m. sermon Sunday at the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula in Carmel Valley.

Sunday school classes will be organized at a "Rally Sunday" Sept. 13 under the direction of George Sackman.

There will be an installation service of the Rev. Bull as minister of the congregation Sept. 27 with other clergymen in attendance.

ST. PHILLIP'S

"The Faith Which Builds the Church" is the topic of the Rev. George W. Schardt's sermon Sunday, 10 a.m., at St. Phillip's Lutheran Church of Carmel.

"The Christian must be sure of Christ," said the Rev. Schardt. "Only in this way can the church influence and win others."

ALL SAINTS

"If You Were Asked a Great Thing" is the title of the sermon to be delivered Sunday at 9:15 a.m. and 11 a.m. services by Father Peter Farmer at All Saints Episcopal Church.

Father Farmer, headmaster of Parish School, is preaching Sunday in the absence of Father Hill and Father Cunningham who are on vacation.

Another in the series of concerts by the Hidden Valley Music Seminars will be heard in the Parish Hall at 8 p.m.

BAHA'I FAITH

Information on the Baha'is' Tuesday night fireside discussion in Carmel is available at 624-4417 or 624-3253.

Race, draft, politics and education are some of the topics for discussion by speakers and guests at a Baha'i seminar Sunday at the Adobe Estrada, Tyler Street, Monterey.

There will be speeches and discussion from 3-5 p.m., entertainment from 5-5:30 p.m., a potluck dinner from 5:30-7 p.m. followed by informal discussion.

"Discover that there are answers to today's perplexing problems" is the keynote of the meeting.

Speakers will be Walter Brown of Monterey on Race, Lois Bauer of Soquel on Politics, Ken Doud of Pacific Grove on Education and Fred Schuller of Seaside on the Draft.

Carsten Schmidt of Monterey will be moderator.

Folk singer Bob Ballard of Pacific Grove will sing during the entertainment period.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Radical reliance on God's all-power which enabled Christ Jesus to heal physical, mental and social ills is attainable today by people of all nations and races" is the subject to be explained in the lesson-sermon, "Jesus Christ," at the First Church of Christ Scientist, Carmel, Sunday at 11 a.m. and 5 p.m.

The church's "The Bible Speaks to You" series will feature "A Parent's Gift" over station KRML Sunday at 7:45 a.m.

CHURCH OF THE WAYFARER

Dr. Herbert Neale, pastor, returned from vacation this week and will deliver the sermon, "Does Everything Really Work Together for Good," Sunday at the Church of the Wayfarer, United Methodist Church. Services are at 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.

OBITUARIES

ELTON

Funeral services were held Tuesday at All Saints Episcopal Church for Katherine Cory Elton of 2645 Ribera Road, Carmel. The Rev. Peter Farmer officiated.

Mrs. Elton died Saturday, an apparent suicide, according to Deputy Coroner Robert B. Shaw. Two Nembutal vials and a note were found beside her body on a path above a rock quarry off San Remo Road in Carmel Highlands.

She is survived by her husband, Frank Elton, whom she married in Santiago, Chile in 1948, a son, Frank, Jr. who attends San Francisco City College, and two daughters, Mrs. Rosemary Ann Markowski, living in Germany and Miss Beverly Katherine Elton of Carmel.

Mrs. Elton was born in Fresno Feb. 17, 1915, the only daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Goodfellow of Pebble Beach.

She attended the Castilleja School for Girls in Palo Alto, a school in Paris and Dominican College in San Rafael. She graduated from Stanford, cum laude, in 1938.

During World War II Mrs. Elton was a Red Cross volunteer in Europe.

After their marriage, the Eltons lived all over the world until returning to the Monterey Peninsula in 1962.

Mrs. Elton was active in All Saints Church.

Farlinger Funeral Home handled arrangements.

GOSLING

Francis Gosling, a Carmel resident for 37 years, died Aug. 12 at the Carmel Convalescent Hospital after a period of failing health.

He was born in London, England, on December 29, 1880, and was employed in the civil service at the Presidio of Monterey and at Fort Ord.

He is survived by his widow, Elsie Gosling, of Carmel.

There were no funeral services at his request. Paul Mortuary attended to the cremation.

BROWN

Funeral services were held Monday for Lawrence Raymond Brown who died Friday at his Camino Real and 12th Avenue home in Carmel following a brief illness.

Mr. Brown, who lived in Carmel three years, was born Nov. 28, 1901, in Braman, Okla.

Before coming to Carmel he operated Brown Motors auto agency in Riverside.

He was a member of Evergreen Lodge 259 F&AM, Al Malaikah Temple Shrine, Los Angeles Consistory Scottish Bodies.

He is survived by his widow, Alta D. Brown of Carmel; two sons, Donald Raymond of Carmel Valley and Lyman Wesley of Ventura; two sisters, Mrs. Bessie M. Cozine of Riverside and Mrs. Millie Priboth of Wichita, Kan.; and six grandchildren.

THE WALKING MAJOR, portrayed by Dale Robertson, and companion Frank Sinatra, Jr. retrace Arnn and Dexter's 826-mile hike from Tokyo to Beppu. (Photo courtesy Ishihara)

And when that route is 826 miles long and must be covered in under 14 days then there'd better be a good reason behind it.

By GARY FRANTZ

At Christmastime 1960 as the Japanese islands entered deep winter a U.S. infantry captain named Robert O. Arnn prepared to hike from Tokyo to Beppu—a distance of 826 miles—in 14 days or less. The purpose of the adventure? To raise $20,000 to build an orphanage to house 45 children. Arnn hoped that publicity connected with the trek would generate enough public support to cover construction costs.

Mary Arnn, the officer's widow who makes her home in Mission Fields, this month returned from Japan where she was guest of a Japanese movie company that has produced a film based on the captain's walk. Called "The Walking Major," the film stars Dale Robertson as Clark Allen, the character based on Arnn, and Dina Merrill as Allen's wife. Frank Sinatra, Jr. plays the part of Jimmie C. Dexter, the specialist fourth class from Arnn's outfit who accompanied the officer on the march.

Mrs. Arnn is a petite woman with a speculative manner who thoroughly outlines her sentiments in a light voice. It had been eight years since her last visit to Japan.

"It was like walking on foot-deep red carpet," she said of the trip.

Mrs. Arnn and her two children, Barbara and Jim, stayed at the Tokyo Hilton while visiting acquaintances in the vicinity.

The film, which was released June 6, had ended its first-run Tokyo showings by the time the Arnns arrived so the producers arranged a private screening.

"Of course it brought back memories," said Mrs. Arnn. "I'd read the script four times so I thought I was pretty well prepared. But when you see part of your life flashed up there on the screen, it's about three times as effective. I'm glad Dale Robertson was not like my husband."

Captain—later Major—Arnn's trek began in 1953 during his first tour of duty in Japan when, in Beppu, his unit became involved in supporting a local war orphanage.

The orphanage was founded by a Japanese woman, Shige Nagata, who had traversed the rarely-crossed space between a highly-connected Japanese family and a career in social work. After starting an orphanage in Hiroshima, she came to Beppu where the emperor donated an old government building for the orphanage.

Beppu, a city of the southern main island, Kyushu, was a gathering place for orphans because, some thought, of the natural hot springs in the area. Many of the children hitched in by train and Shige Nagata began visiting the railway station.

"The orphanage lived by whatever came its way," said Mrs. Arnn.

The government allotted 90 yen (25 cents) per child for food each day, which was sufficient to maintain a well-balanced, if meager, diet.

U.S. military personnel also organized to contribute living essentials. One important gift was a deed for the land the old building stood on.

"We were just contributing to what others did," said Mrs. Arnn. "It wasn't until we left that we got concerned."

Reassigned to the United States, Arnn began to correspond with Shige Nagata and her assistant, Dolores Sakamoto. Both know English from periods spent in Washington, D.C. studying social work.

"They seemed to apply everything they'd learned plus maintain the usual sense of Japanese family relationships," Mrs. Arnn described the ladies' methods.

"It was a fusing of East and West in the orphanage. That's why my husband was interested in helping."

Despite the dilapidated building and precarious finances, the way of life at the orphanage had a quality of warmth that impressed Mrs. Arnn. Much of this warmth resulted from the closeness of the children among themselves and in their relationship to the guardians.

"In many ways the children received better care than in most families," said Mrs. Arnn. She verged on saying "American families" and withdrew the word, hesitant about being impolitic.

"The only thing to compare it with would be a kibbutz in Israel."

In 1958, stationed at Fort Ord, Arnn learned that the U.S. unit in Beppu, one of the orphanage's few steady sources of aid, was leaving. He responded by initiating clothing drives and sending articles to Beppu through military units.

The Arnns were assigned to the Tokyo area in 1960 and began the phase of work with the orphanage portrayed in the film.

The old building was the target. Barbara, who spent her 13th and 14th summers helping out in the orphanage, once came home with an anecdote indicating the state of the building.

The Beppu hot springs were piped by a water company to individual homes where residents enjoyed delicious baths. The orphanage was hooked into the system. It also had a very leaky roof. Barb and her friends spent occasional bath hours happily soaking in hot water up to their necks, wash cloth in one hand and umbrella in the other to keep off the rain.

Arnn decided an endurance hike with a deadline for its completion would generate public interest in his project.

The film spends much of its two-and-a-half hours following the hike right down the road: Allen and Dexter crossing hump-backed bridges, surrounded by downtown traffic, crossing paddy fields; and wading through a sea of tea mounds.

"The first hike was a very lonely, grueling, bitter ordeal," said Mrs. Arnn.

The pair completed the 826 miles in 13 days, 14 hours and 15 minutes. This is an average of 60 miles a day—10 hours a day of forced march.

Two hikes followed in 1961 and 1962 in company with small groups of Japanese and Americans. People along the route had warmed to the event and began to respond to the hikers.

"John said they'd walk along and people would give them mikan and bottles of milk," said Mrs. Arnn. A mikan is a sort of tangerine.

CAPT. JOHN C. ARNN
U.S. Army photograph, 1960

The three marches gathered about half the $20,000 goal. Contributions came from U.S. armed forces personnel, Japanese and people in the United States who had read the occasional news item.

There was one envelope containing two dollar bills and the note: "I'm an old lady but think this is a great thing you've done."

There was no signature.

The money in hand was enough to start construction. Shige Nagata then obtained a bank loan to complete the project.

John Arnn was killed by a mine in South Vietnam in 1965. His adventure was not completed, however.

In fall 1969 Barbara noticed a small item in the Los Angeles Times saying Dina Merrill was playing a role in a Japanese-produced movie entitled "The Walking Major."

"We knew it could be no one else," Mrs. Arnn said.

Not long afterward the Los Angeles representative of Ishihara International Productions, Inc. called on Mrs. Arnn in Mission Fields at the home the Arnns once planned for retirement. He brought the first script for the film.

"Before I read the script I was highly dubious, but after reading it—even though the English was Japanese flavored—I could see it was a very well-intentioned story," said Mrs. Arnn. "And since Mr. Yoda said the movie company planned to help the orphanage I agreed they could use our family in the movie."

The company went through four scripts, for each of which Mrs. Arnn asked and received the right of approval. Additional clearance was necessary from the Japanese Ministry of Education, the U.S. and Japanese state departments and the Pentagon, the latter which is very conscious these days of involvement in private movie production.

"We were apprehensive about the movie until we got there," said Mrs. Arnn.

"Dale Robertson is very different but he's the kind of person my husband would have admired. During 16 years in the army I saw more people like Dale Robertson than General Patton. The fact amazes me that it took the Japanese to put it on the screen."

"The Walking Major" is one of the first major Japanese productions to feature American personnel. Characters speak their native language accompanied by captions of the opposite tongue.

The company hasn't yet decided whether or not to release the film in the United States. Mrs. Arnn thinks its idealism in the manner of U.S. films of 10 to 15 years ago might not be considered current box office.

"I think they made the movie with the ideal: the war is over. It's a statement of pity that things have to be this way."

The film has been playing to large audiences and, if it continues to do so, the walking major will have fulfilled his dream. Proceeds from his story will pay off the last of the orphanage building debts.

CHILDREN'S MEAL is filling but not fancy. Orphanage received food allowance from government of 25 cents per child per day.

Alison Stilwell Cameron exhibits works in Carmel Valley

Carmel artist Alison Stilwell Cameron, one of the few Western artists to master Chinese painting techniques, will display her brush paintings in a one-woman show opening Sunday at the Village Gallery, Del Fino Place, Carmel Valley Village.

Mrs. Cameron and her husband, retired Air Force Col. William R. Cameron, and their three children and four dogs settled in Rancho Rio Vista in December after leaving the service in Orlando, Fla.

Mrs. Cameron has spent much time in the Carmel vicinity. The daughter of Gen. Joseph W. "Vinegar Joe" and Mrs. Stilwell, her parents bought property in Carmel in 1920. Mrs. Stilwell has lived in Carmel since 1940.

Mrs. Cameron was born in China—the first birth in the Rockefeller Foundation Hospital in Peking.

During the following 18 years she shuttled across the Pacific as her father took the family on successive military tours in China.

In 1933, at the age of 12, Mrs. Cameron began serious study of oil painting with Mrs. Frank Ingles in Coronado, Calif., and later with Arthur Hill Gilbert in Monterey.

In 1935, when Gen. Stilwell became military attache to the American Embassy in Peking, she became interested in the Chinese manner of painting. Through her father, it was arranged that she would study with one of the greatest living masters of Chinese painting, Prince P'u Ju, first cousin to the puppet emperor of Manchukuo.

This close association covered a period of three years, ending when the Stilwell family returned to the United States. However, as recently as 1959 Mrs. Cameron exchanged paintings with the prince, then living on Formosa.

Observors have said that Mrs. Cameron's work, drawing on experience like that gained from working with Prince P'u Ju, evidences both the sensitive detail and the technical disciplines found in the paintings of the old masters.

"Her paintings, whether large landscapes or small ink drawings, are subtle and sophisticated and perfectly suited to American tastes in decoration and design," wrote one critic.

"According to connoisseurs, Miss Stilwell has done extraordinarily well in mastering the art of Chinese painting on silk, a difficult art for Occidentals," commented Life magazine.

Possibly the finest tribute came from the Chinese themselves. The art critic in the Peking Times in May, 1938, when Mrs. Cameron was 17, wrote: "When viewing the works of an artist in a medium or style foreign to their nationality or artistic training, there is a tendency, conscious or unconscious, to make allowances for their handling of something alien. No such reservation need one have when viewing the paintings of Miss Alison Stilwell. Judged from entirely Chinese standards, Miss Stilwell's work shows that delicacy of touch and coloring found in flower, bird and figure studies, and forcefulness in the landscapes, rocky peaks and pine trees, subjects so loved by the Chinese themselves."

Mrs. Cameron has displayed her work in such diverse places as Hawaii, Orlando, New York City and Ecuador.

Among the owners of her works are Andre Kostalanetz, Madame Lin Yu Tang, Jeanette McDonald and Mrs. William Wrigley. Her paintings also hang in the executive offices of the Fresno Savings and Loan Association.

In addition to her painting ability, Mrs. Cameron has written several books, most recently Chinese Painting Techniques.

YWCA MOVES AHEAD

From 15 charter members in January and no headquarters building, the newly organized Young Women's Christian Association now numbers more than 150 contributing members and a newly acquired office, a little three-room house on Valley Way next to Carmel Convalescent Hospital, the YWCA Organizing Committee of the Monterey Peninsula announced.

Small but growing, the group has had two Slimnastic courses and a swim class the past spring; a summer program of enlisting teen-age girls as volunteers for social agencies, and modern dance, ballet and exercise classes this month.

A general membership meeting will be announced soon, with men, women and girls all welcome in the pioneering project to enrich the lives of girls and women in Carmel and the Peninsula.

Watercolor competition at PG Museum

The Sixth Annual Watercolor Competitive at the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History will occur Sept. 16 - Oct. 18.

Awards of $100 for first place, $50 for second and $25 for third are offered.

Mrs. R. J. McCoon, a Fresno artist, will select work to be hung and award prizes.

Other prizes are for: best painting using all-transparent technique, $50, awarded by United California Bank, Pacific Grove branch; best painting using limited palette, $50, awarded by Sprouse-Reitz Co. of Pacific Grove and an anonymous donor; and best small painting not exceeding 16 inches in any dimension, $25 in merchandise awarded by Hayward Lumber Co. of Pacific Grove.

Participants must be Monterey County residents.

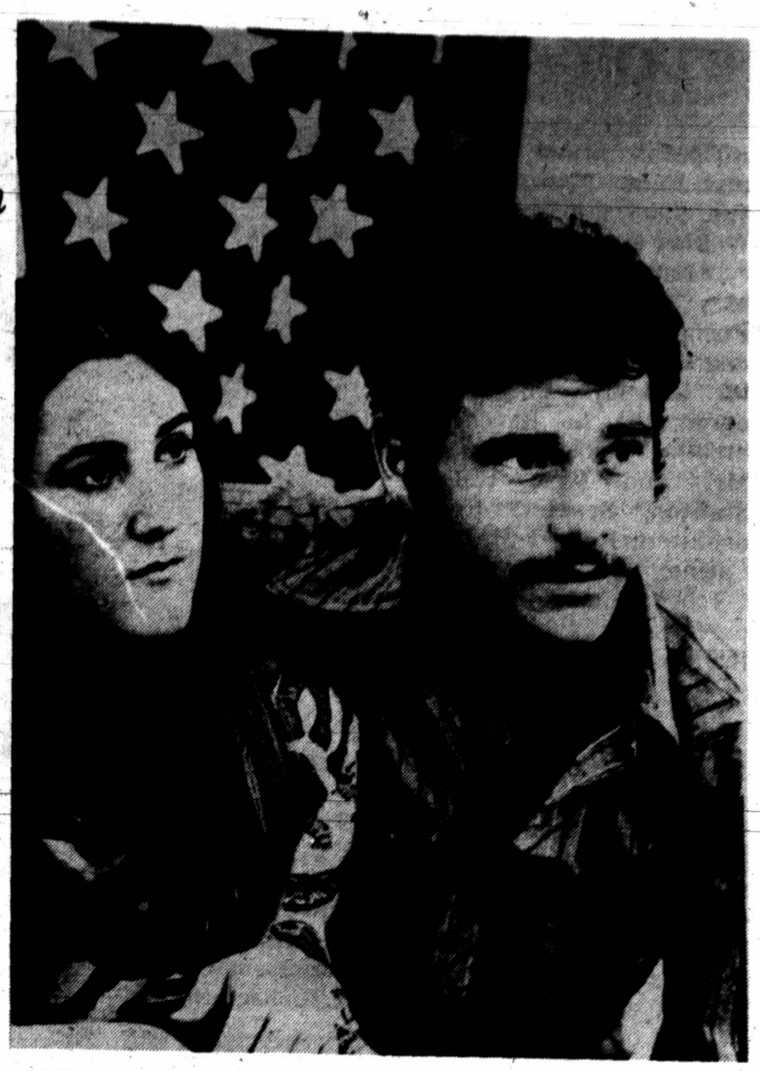
Paintings using any aqueous medium are eligible. They must be original, non-classroom work done within a year of the exhibition and must not have been previously hung in a juried show.

Paintings are not to exceed 42-by-42 inches including frame and must be adequately framed and glassed.

Accepted paintings must remain on exhibition until the end of the show.

Entries may be submitted by hand only from Sept. 8 to Sept. 11 at 5 p.m., according to Vern Yadon, curator.

Artists wishing to enter their work should first obtain an entry form by calling the museum, 372-4212.



ONE OF PHOTOGRAPHS to be exhibited in Carmel artist Kali's show at Pacific Grove Art Center through September is accompanied by the following poem:

"Young man and young woman of country so bold
Sit now and listen to things that are told.

You would change your country, and someday soon will but sit now and listen to the noise and the still."

KALI WORKS ON DISPLAY

Carmel "photo-artist" Kali has work on display through September at the Pacific Grove Art Center.

Some of the photographs are accompanied by poems.

Some of the work will appear in a forthcoming book by Kali.

The center at 568 Lighthouse Ave. is open Tuesday-Friday from 11 a.m. - 5 p.m. and Saturdays and Sundays from noon - 5 p.m.

The exhibition includes approximately 150 black-and-white and color photographs including Kali's unique photographs overlaid with painter's media.

Handicraft entries grow for Festival

Preparations for the Carmel Mission Fiesta include the forthcoming distribution of a fiesta poster and the entry of five additional artists in the event's handicraft fair.

The poster, now being prepared, is donated by a well-known Carmel artist, according to Dick Darragh, fiesta publicity director.

New handicraft fair entries are Mrs. Milton Russell displaying enamelled copper; James Trivitte, metal sculpture; Adele Bramlet, costumes; Dorothy Wolters, oil painting; Karen Emerson, crafts.

Events commence Sept. 27 with an 11 a.m. mass honoring the mission's patron saint, Charles de Borromeo, to be followed by a procession to the courtyard where festivities will continue until 6 p.m.

The fiesta is based on a Mexican theme and features mariachi bands, pinata competitions and Mexican food.

Other activities include free stage entertainment, games of skill, pony rides and a teen dance in Crespi Hall.

Barbequed chicken provides the main food course for the day.

Preparations for the fiesta are under the direction of Father George McMennemin, pastor of Carmel Mission Basilica, and fiesta co-chairmen, Phil Coniglio and John Calcagno.

Proceeds go toward the improvement of a children's play field below the mission.

The fiesta has drawn an average of 5,000 people in recent years.

Five Carmel homes on AIA tour

The American Institute of Architect house tour, Tour 200, Sept. 12, features visits to five homes in Carmel and three in Carmel Valley.

A house selection committee, chosen by association president Donald Wald, selected the tour homes as "representative of good present day design."

The homes will be open from 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Refreshments will be served from 2 - 4 p.m. at the Robert Stanton home on Scarlett Road in the valley.

Mrs. Stanton is president of the local chapter of the Women's Architectural League which is sponsoring the tour, the first in several years. She has worked with the house selection committee and Mrs. Walter Burde, ticket and public relations chairman for the tour.

A $3.50 ticket donation will benefit the league's fund for special architectural exhibits and local community projects. Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Burde, 624-3986, or at the Old Monterey Bicentennial office, 539 Hartnell, Monterey.

The tour is a part of bicentennial celebrations.

Members of the house selection committee are Hamilton Brown of Carmel, Joyce Stevens of Fort Ord, Paul Davis of Monterey and Joseph Wythe of Monterey.

Carmel houses on the tour are those of Mr. and Mrs. J.F. van Loben Sels, Scenic Drive and Martin Way, architect Frank Lloyd Wright with an addition by John C. Walker; Mr. and Mrs. John Connell, Ocean View and Scenic Drive, architect Will Shaw of Monterey; Mrs. E. C. Brundin, 17th and Scenic Drive, architect Harwell Hamilton Harris with an addition by Joseph Wythe; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth N. Graham, Carmel Knolls Drive, architect Walter Burde of Carmel; Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Freeman, 25835 Rio Vista Drive, architect Whitney Smith of Pasadena.

In Carmel Valley: Mr. and Mrs. Max Landphere, Poplar Lane, architect Hall and Goodhue of Monterey; Mr. and Mrs. Duane Sandgren, 19A La Rancheria, architect Robert McIntyre; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stanton, Scarlett Road, architect Robert Stanton, Carmel.

Tickets may also be purchased at the homes on the day of the tour.

FOREIGN STUDIES HONORS

Three Carmel men were named to the Dean's List at the Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies for the Spring Semester 1970. Kermit Carvell, Thomas Jeavons and Richard Woytak were among 16 students on the list with a straight "A" record.

HOME OF Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Graham on Carmel Knolls Drive, Carmel, is one of eight selected for viewing by Tour 200. Visits will be made Sept. 12 to homes selected as "representative of good present day architecture." (Photo by Richard Olson).

Nadas piano recital Sept. 11 marks Hungarian Week

DR. ISTVAN NADAS

Dr. Istvan Nadas, concert pianist well-known locally for his performances at the Carmel Bach Festival, will play a selection of Liszt and Bartok numbers Sept. 11, 8:30 p.m., at Sunset Auditorium.

Dr. Nadas will also lecture on Hungarian music Sept. 12, 11 a.m., at the auditorium.

The appearances are the opening events for Hungarian Week of the Old Monterey Bicentennial.

Dr. Nadas is presently a professor of piano at Washington State University in Pullman. He has also taught at Monterey Peninsula College.

A graduate of the National Academy of Budapest, Dr. Nadas studied piano with Bela Bartok, composition with Zoltan Kodaly and chamber music with Leo Weiner.

In his teens he toured Europe as a recitalist and as a soloist with major orchestras.

During World War II he was interned in a German concentration camp and afterwards returned to his career in Italy with such success that he was awarded one of the Italian government's highest decorations.

Harold Taubman of the New York Times said Dr. Nadas displayed "technique, musicianship, breadth of taste and a freshness and individuality of vision."

Tickets for concert and lecture are $2.75, $2.50 and $1.75 and are available at Bicentennial Headquarters, 539 Hartnell, Monterey; Bicentennial Casitas, Monterey; Abinante Music Store, 425 Alvarado, Monterey; Carmel Music, Dolores at Sixth, Carmel; Lily Walker Music, 169 Fountain, Pacific Grove; Gadsby Music.

CAL POLY HONORS

Named to the 1970 President's Honors List at California State Polytechnic College in San Luis Obispo last week were March A. Bryans of Carmel, majoring in soil science, and Christopher A. Bunn of Pebble Beach, whose major was education. For this distinction, students must have earned a 3.0 grade point average.

PARTY PLANS . . .

by Phyllis Jervey

What do young people do during the summer? Lovely and healthy Deborah Evert, who is visiting her father Bill and "second mother" Glori at Carmel Point, is a perfect example of an active teenager.

Straight "A" student at Ojai's Nordhoff High School, Debbie has been Camp Counselor under the sponsorship of the Y.M.C.A. There was a three weeks staff training, each week a different session. The first group consisted of The Frontiers (14-15 year-old girls)...Debbie is 16.

The first activity was a 26-mile rough hike...two days and one night. Sleeping in bags on pine needles; it was in mountainous territory...cold! A campfire was built and everyone sang to Debbie's guitar, keeping the wolves away. The next morning a good hot stew was trucked up by the camp manager.

Debbie's next group consisted of 9-10 year olds. This session was a "little hike" which was a two hour round trip deal. They were looking for the "Splinter Cat" (20 ft. tall and 100 ft. long.) These imaginary monsters are only afraid of lightning or flashlights. This junior camp was really right next to the "Big One" and food was again trucked up. So we haven't recipes on girls cooking over flint-lighted sticks plus possums, etc.

Instead, Debbie has told us what teenagers serve around the pool. Ping-pong occupies quite a bit of the pre-barbecue. Swimming is the main recreation, but along comes the time for FOOD.

A FRESH FRUIT salad is the favorite. Oranges, peaches, apricots, pineapples, bananas (peeled and sliced), grapes, cherries. A tantalizing fruit juice dressing with lemon-orange juice, sugar to taste, flavored with Angostura bitters...or use rosewater lime or Rose's lime juice discretely. When mixed, cover with freshly grated or dehydrated shredded coconut. Do not bother with lettuce. This is really a fruit cocktail type of thing and gorgeous.

Now comes KOUFTA which Glori has shown Debbie.

One pound ground round, 1 lb. ground lamb; salt and pepper to taste with chopped green onions, including tops and chopped fresh parsley. Make into thick patties. Cover with olive oil and broil according to each person's preference over charcoal briquets. For easy before-party preparation, arrange these patties and cover with wax paper, saran or foil. Refrigerate. Two lbs. meat makes 8 patties.

Sour dough bread, sliced thickly, covered with garlic butter and Parmesan cheese make the best foundation. Toasted on the edge of the grill, these are waiting for the just-right patties or kouftas, middle east style.

Canned chili beans, sparked with thick sliced red onion rings and baked potatoes with chive sour cream are prepared indoors. Remember these are vigorous youngsters who dance, swim, hike, play tennis, ride horseback, ping pong, etc...They can afford to enjoy these dishes we've just told you about, plus.

Deborah's Caramel Cake

Make the cake from a mix, although Debbie prefers doing her own. The specialty here is that the frosting is this gal's own particular invention.

Special Frosting: One cup brown sugar mixed with ½ cup water. Do this with patience and cook without getting angry until it comes into a soft ball stage. Next, beat 3 egg whites until stiff but fluffy. Mix the syrup with the egg whites, add lemon or vanilla extract to taste and spread on cake.

Debbie makes this cake only for her special friends...the others just get plain old cherry cake from a mix.

With her long straight red hair, Debbie reflects her father's looks and friendly personality. She is the epitome of forward-looking young girls with aptitude and quiet acceptibility without being intimidated about the future. That is why Debbie was chosen to be a camp leader.

Know the child for whom you are setting an example, smile even if it hurts and set an example for responsibility.

Glori, who no one could ever call a step-mother (Shades of Cinderella) has established such a rapport with Bill's children that they adore her and with the mutual compatability, these youngsters love visiting in Carmel.

White Oaks Theatre gets county-wide support

Monterey County Businessmen are taking an active move toward supporting cultural enrichment programs for economically and culturally deprived elementary school children in Monterey County.

Frank Crispo, chairman of the board of directors of White Oaks Theatre, Inc., kicked off the idea by sponsoring a performance for the Boronda Y-Day Campers from Salinas. Additional financial assistance came from Dick Bruhn's, Salinas Optimists and Salinas Junior Woman's Club.

Inter Harvest of Salinas sponsored a second performance on July 29 when the White Oaks Company trucked "Mugwhump!" to Roosevelt School in Salinas, where the show was performed for children from the Migrant Eduction Program.

A third performance quickly followed when Mr. and Mrs. Martin Domke of Carmel Valley donated the cost of a performance for the Day Care Center at Highland School in Seaside.

On August 9, the Marina Headstart Program children were brought out to Carmel Valley to see "Mugwhump!" in its home theatre.

According to Crispo, this is only the beginning of a wider program, which through the aid of local businessmen and companies, will bring the White Oaks Theatre Touring Company into many more schools in Monterey County.

The White Oaks Company travels extensively throughout the state, performing for elementary and secondary school children. "Mugwhump!", which is still being shown in Carmel Valley on Sundays at 2:30, will be the elementary school production to tour until 1971. Additional productions geared to junior high and high school levels, will be added to the touring repertory early in October.

HIDDEN VALLEY CONCERT

Peter Meckel, Director of the Hidden Valley Seminar, will conduct an all-Beethoven program at All Saints Church this Sunday at 8 p.m., which is open to the public.

DON MULDERICK as the Mugwhump greets young fans following a performance at White Oaks Theatre.

'Illegitimate Theatre' make return engagement

A return engagement for the Illegitimate Theatre is scheduled on September 5 and 6 at White Oaks Theatre in Carmel Valley. After the improvisational comedy troupe's first appearance on the Monterey Peninsula this month, White Oaks Theatre box office has been receiving letters and phone calls requesting additional performances.

The Illegitimate Theatre, often seen on Merv Griffin Show and The Joey Bishop Show, appeared on The David Frost Show immediately following their performances in Carmel Valley. The group appears regularly at the Los Robles Galleries in Palo Alto. They started over five years ago at the Tangent, a coffee house near Stanford University.

Phillip Schultz, producer and director of this very warm and funny improvisational group, is joined on stage by De Vera Marcus, Shirley Coates, and Ray Barrett. Mr. Schultz said they are planning all different material for the September performances.

The performances are set to begin at 8:30 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, September 5 and 6. Reservations are advisable and can be made by phoning 659-2248.

SLIDE SHOWS

Two award-winning slide shows will be presented at the Padre Trails Camera Club meeting next Thursday, Sept. 3, in Brey Hall at Carmel High School at 8 p.m.

Described as "short but excellent," the shows are Swiss Holiday, a 1969 Photographic Society of America travelogue award winner, and Art of the Khmers, which received a photo-essay award.

Club members will show slides for submission to PSA pictorial and nature contests. Also at this meeting, nominees will be named for election to office Sept. 17.

Sunrise to Sunset

THIS HAS BEEN another busy week, and I've barely swept the pine needles off my feet when, lo and behold, I find myself announcing another Sunday concert at Forest Theater. The all-Mozart Chamber Music concert this Sunday is the eighth in the series of free concerts sponsored by the City of Carmel at our lovely theater in the pines.

The Beyer String Trio, a very familiar group in Carmel, consisting of one-time residents, is making a return trip to the Peninsula for its second concert of the 1970 season. The trio, consisting of Helen Beyer, violinist, Erwin Gordon, violist, and Elaine Beyer, cellist, will be accompanied by Fred Schaad, also a familiar pianist on the local music scene.

Special guest artist, David Seeley, noted oboist, will join them in Mozart's Quartet in F Major for oboe, violin, viola and cello. Other numbers included on the program are Mozart's Serenade No. 1 in C Major for two violins and cello, Sonate in D Major for violin and piano, and Quartet No. 2 in E flat Major for piano, violin, viola and cello.

Hopefully our sunny Sundays will be par for the course the rest of the season and our guest artists will enjoy nimble fingers "a la Carmel sunshine!"

THIS SUNDAY'S GROUP comes in the footsteps of another well-known local group, with the pines still bowing to the thrilling notes of the soloists of Nancy Ness Bowman's Opera Workshop. In behalf of the City Council and the Cultural Commission, I wish to thank the fine performers who have really presented a wonderful series this year. Many of our participants are local people and give rather generously of their time and talent.

xxx

Eldon Dedini, local cartoonist and artist (quite renowned in this special field), is more than generous with his talent, and oft-times creates a beautiful poster for the benefit of all. Take note of our bulletin board in front of Sunset Center on San Carlos and 10th, advertising the Monterey Film Festival which will feature the award winning films to be shown at our theater on August 30.

xxx

Just want to remind you once more that Studio 7 features life drawing and painting classes Wednesday mornings on a share-the-fee basis. Robert Horne, resident-instructor in Studio 7, invites you to visit his workshop. Intermediate and advanced courses are also being offered. Barbara West, sharing the same studio, offers courses in portraiture as well.

xxx

Life is slowing down to a fast pace for this erstwhile reporter, for it has been a very busy summer season. One must always give credit where credit is due and Nancy Larson, my very diligent secretary, types faster than thoughts can flow from this active brain. I am most grateful to her these recent days when pressures are almost overwhelming, to say the least.

See you Sunday.

String trio plays Sunday

The Beyer String Trio will return to Forest Theater Sunday at 2:00 p.m. to give an all-Mozart chamber music concert. This is the eighth in a series of free concerts sponsored by the City of Carmel.

The trio consists of Helen Beyer, violinist; Erwin Gordon, violist; and Elaine Beyer, cellist. They will be accompanied by Fred Schaad, one of Carmel's resident pianists. David Seeley, talented oboist, will join them in Mozart's Quartet in F Major for oboe, violin, viola and cello. Other numbers included on the program are Mozart's Serenade No. 1 in C Major for two violins and cello, Sonate in D Major for violin and piano, and Quartet No. 2 in E flat Major for piano, violin, viola and cello.

The Sunset Cultural Center, with the cooperation of Local 616, American Federation of Musicians, through a grant from the Recording Industries Trust Fund, presents this concert to the community for the purpose of creating greater interest in live music performances.

Forest Theater is an outdoor amphitheater located at 8th and Mountain View in Carmel. For further information, call 624-3996.

HIGH FLYERS: Fred Astaire and Barbara Hancock sail through a glen in "Finian's Rainbow," the joyous musical which will be presented in a special limited engagement Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 2 and 3 only at Carmel's Village Theater.

Popular 'Mugwhump!' to play two more weeks

White Oaks Theatre's current children's play, "Mugwhump!," will be given an extra two performances on August 30 and September 6. Originally scheduled to close last Sunday, continued high public response has encouraged the theatre staff to extend the run. Performances are at 2:30 p.m. and reservations can be made by phoning 659-2248. There is a group rate available for groups of ten or more.

She's Carmel's own Addie Bramlet!

'unidentified lady' revealed

The "unidentified lady" of the Doc Rickett's Cannery Row Theatre production of "Who's Happy Now?" is Carmel's own Adele "Addie" Bramlet.

In addition to her new acting role, Addie is the official costume maker for the Monterey Bicentennial and owner of the Blue Pig Boutique on Ocean Avenue.

As the Bicentennial Costumer, she has made over 140 authentic costumes ranging from 1770 to the late Victorian period.

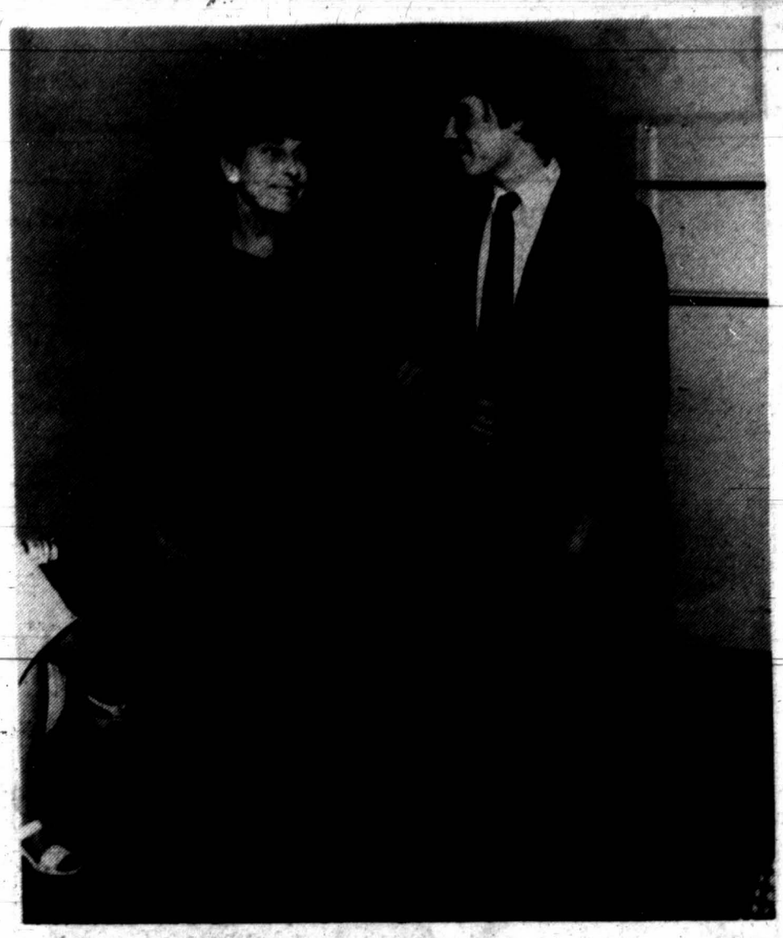
Addie moved to the Peninsula from the Bay area (Castro Valley) nine years ago and soon became involved with the Studio Theatre in Carmel making all their costumes. Then when Flora's of Cannery Row opened she was asked to design some wild roaring '20s costumes for the boss and employees.

Now Addie plays another leading role on Cannery Row—that of the "real" mother in Oliver Hailey's comedy, "Who's Happy Now?"

Addie, attired as the aging mother of the playwright (played by Tom Targownik) is shown above as he escorts her into the theatre as the play opens.

Targownik introduces Adele to the audience as his mother, who sits in the audience seeing her life as it really occurred and her son's play as he had hoped it would happen. Adele gives a moving performance as the disgusted mother who wishes her son would not have interfered with her marriage.

Because of its popularity with audiences, "Who's Happy Now?" has extended its run through Sept. 14. It plays Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday alternating with "Cannery Row" on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. All performances begin at 8:30 and ticket reservations can be made by calling the Ricketts Theatre (above the Warehouse), 373-3866.



FILM PRODUCTION COURSE AT M.P.C.

A course in film production—Drama 161AB—has been added to the evening curriculum for the fall semester at Monterey Peninsula College. The three-unit lecture-laboratory class, designed to give students a basic background in the creative and technical processes involved in the production of motion pictures, will be instructed by Sam Harrison Thursdays from 7 to 10 p.m. and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to noon.

Refreshing these days. Clothes that reflect the trends in fashion but are low-keyed. Which is all part of Deansgate's Gentlemen's Agreement – and yours. To wit: This 3 button suit. With lapels that are a bit wider, jacket length slightly longer, center vent higher and pocket flap deeper. But all designed in proper proportion. And balanced not to look ostentatious. In quiet stripes and plaids as well as solid colors.

RESOLUTION NO 2698

CALLING A PUBLIC HEARING TO DETERMINE WHETHER THE PUBLIC NECESSITY, HEALTH OR SAFETY OR PUBLIC WELFARE REQUIRE THE REMOVAL OF POLES AND OVERHEAD WIRES AND ASSOCIATED OVERHEAD STRUCTURES FROM A PORTION OF THE UNDERGROUND UTILITY DISTRICT DESCRIBED IN SECTION 1409.01 OF THE MUNICIPAL CODE

WHEREAS Division 2 of Part XI of the Municipal Code establishes a procedure for the removal of poles and wires and associated overhead structures from a portion of the Underground Utility District, described in Section 1409.01 of said Municipal Code, and requires as the initial step in such procedure the holding of a public hearing to ascertain whether public necessity, health or safety or public welfare requires the removal of poles and overhead wires and associated overhead structures from any public street, alley, or way within said portion; and

WHEREAS it has been recommended that poles and overhead wires and associated overhead structures be removed from:

Within the area bounded by the line that begins at the intersection of the northerly boundary line of Sixth Avenue with the easterly boundary line of Monte Verde Street and runs thence southerly along the easterly boundary line of Monte Verde Street 30 feet; thence easterly and parallel with the southerly boundary line of Sixth Avenue 385 feet; thence southerly and parallel with the easterly boundary line of Monte Verde Street 100 feet to a point in the northerly boundary line of Ocean Avenue; thence easterly along the northerly boundary line of Ocean Avenue 275 feet; then northerly and parallel with the easterly boundary line of Monte Verde Street 100 feet; thence easterly and parallel with the northerly boundary line of Ocean Avenue 50 feet to a point in the westerly boundary line of San Carlos Street; thence northerly along the westerly boundary line of San Carlos Street 190 feet; thence westerly and parallel with the northerly boundary line of Sixth Avenue 70 feet; thence northerly and parallel with the westerly boundary line of San Carlos Street 10 feet; thence westerly and parallel with the northerly boundary line of Sixth Avenue 30 feet; thence southerly and parallel with the westerly boundary line of San Carlos Street 40 feet; thence westerly and parallel with the northerly boundary line of Sixth Avenue 150 feet to a point in the westerly boundary line of Dolores Street; thence northerly along the westerly boundary line of Dolores Street 80 feet; thence westerly and parallel with the northerly boundary line of Sixth Avenue 100 feet; thence southerly and parallel with the westerly boundary line of Dolores Street 80 feet; thence westerly and parallel with the northerly boundary line of Sixth Avenue 50 feet; thence southerly and parallel with the westerly boundary line of Dolores Street 40 feet; thence westerly and parallel with the northerly boundary line of Sixth Avenue 310 feet to a point in the easterly boundary line of Monte Verde Street; thence southerly along the easterly boundary line of Monte Verde Street 90 feet to the point of beginning.

NOW, THEREFORE, be it resolved as follows:

1) NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a public hearing will be held by the Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea on the 10th of September, 1970, at the hour of 8:00 p.m., or as soon thereafter as the matter can be heard, in the Council Chambers in the City Hall, Carmel-by-the-Sea, California, to ascertain whether the public necessity, health or safety or public welfare require the removal of poles and overhead wires and associated overhead structures from the above-described area (which is a portion of the Underground Utility District described in Section 1409.01 of the Municipal Code).

2) At such hearing, all persons interested shall be given an opportunity to be heard. Said hearing may be continued from time to time as may be determined by the City Council.

3) The City Clerk shall notify all affected property owners and utility companies of the time and place of such hearing by mailing a copy of this resolution to such property owners and utility companies at least 30 days prior to the date thereof.

4) The above-described area is shown upon that certain map entitled "Underground - Step 5", which is on file in the office of the City Clerk of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

PASSED AND ADOPTED by the City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea this 5th day of August 1970, by the following roll call vote:

AYES: COUNCILMEN: Anderson, Brown, Falge, Whittlesey and Laiolo.

TAX COURSE

A basic income tax course will be conducted beginning Sept. 14 under the supervision of H & R Block, the nation's largest tax service, according to Bill Molloy, new Monterey Peninsula area manager.

"The Block tax course is designed for people who want to save money on their income tax, or make money as tax preparers," said Mr. Molloy.

"Anyone may enroll," he continued, "and there are no restrictions or qualifications of any kind. It is not necessary that applicants have any previous financial knowledge or tax experience."

The curriculum provides for a minimum of two three-hour sessions per week for twelve weeks—making a total of 72 hours of classroom work. All instructors are veteran Block employees.

Molloy added that job interviews will be arranged for qualified graduates of the course who are interested in working for H & R Block during the tax season, although they will be under no obligation to accept employment.

Enrollment forms for the Block income tax course may be obtained by writing, visiting or phoning the H & R Block office at 1440 Fremont

A CONCERT IN MEMORIAM

By Irving W. Greenberg, Ph.D.

The third concert of the Hidden Valley Music Seminars on Sunday at the All Saints' Episcopal Sanctuary was in memory of the eminent British conductor, Sir John Barbirolli, who died recently. Dr. Michael Zearott, orchestral director of the group, had been acquainted with Sir John in Monaco, where they both had conducted on the same podium.

The first offering on the program was three madrigals by Do Carlo Gesualdo, Prince of Venosa. It was sung a capella, by a somewhat augmented mixed choir, which seemed, at times, to be out of depth of the bold, harmonic and complex nature of these works—far in advance of anything achieved by his contemporaries, such as the better known madrigals of Monteverdi. Yet, at other times, the sound was of such a purity of tone that it seemed like an angelic choir. Aberrations in pitch were also noted from time to time.

The second composition was the Gabriel Faure Requiem, Op. 48 for soloists, choir and orchestra. Here, a very fine piano accompaniment by Randall Bare took the place of the usual orchestral instrumentation. The soloists were Ed Soto, tenor; Sarah Veatch, soprano; and Paul Smith, bass.

The Faure Requiem is one of the most lyrical of this type of work, having at its base the promise of rest from the surcease of life, without any terrors or despair, thus giving it an attitude of singular dignity.

The choir sang the whole work with a classic nobility of spirit and a tender ecstacy. Especially to be mentioned were the above soloists in their various interpretations. This was under the direction of John Waddell, who attained the objectives inherent in this work quite fully, but which could have been even more impressive if it had had more emphatic and stronger projection.

After a short intermission, the orchestra, under Dr. Michael Zearott, took over. The Larghetto movement of the Serenade for Strings in E minor, Op. 20, by Sir Edward Elgar was most beautifully expressed in the sighing and lamentations of the strings. This particular work was a favorite of Barbirolli's, and it was indeed evocative of a loving compassion for the late maestro.

The last work on the program was the Symphony No. 2 in D major by Jan Sibelius, the Finnish composer. This work shows Sibelius imbued with an extreme love of his country and its natural beauties. It is in four movements and the music is by turns pastoral, introspective and sombre in the slow movement, which is a saga in itself; and wildly exultant in the finale with almost a Breughelian strain.

It was conducted with a great deal of concentration, befitting a work which had been adopted by the Finns themselves as the expression of their revolt against oppression and their final triumph. It was good to hear this work again, as very few of Sibelius' works have turned up lately in the concert hall. However, here it must be noted that the tonal weight of sound obtained by the orchestra was much too heavy for the Sanctuary auditorium, necessitating a tighter control of the youthful fervor of the orchestra, in order that a more natural balance of sound be obtained.

IF YOU ARE LOOKING FOR AN EQUESTRIAN CENTER on over 37 acres of California and would like to be the proud owner of one of the original Comstock Adobes with its plank floors, hand-hewn open beams, etc., and are interested in a very desirable financing arrangement, please call us for details.

Walk to Town

We have just listed this small but cute home that is just four blocks from town. It is charming, has garden, fireplace and a nice secluded patio. Just $27,500.

Prime Country Club Home

This is one of the finest homes in MPCC. Large rooms, huge fireplace and located on a nicely landscaped level lot. Just reduced $4,000 to $68,500.

Owners Anxious

Have two lots whose owners' plans have changed and they are anxious to sell. One is 1½ acres in Rancho Rio Vista with a view of Pt. Lobos and the other is in Handley Hills. Owners would like an offer.

3 BEDROOMS, 2 BATHS, HATTON FIELDS -- $52,000
A brick and wood-shingle house with shake roof and clean, attractive lines. The 17' x 25', beamed ceiling living room and patio face south. The large, but easy-care garden has an automatic sprinkler system. Separate dining room, automatic garage door. A great house and tremendous value at $52,000.

4 BEDROOMS -- SCENIC DRIVE ON THE POINT
On a double lot with a view straight across Carmel Bay to Pebble Beach ... a no-glare, north outlook. The sunny patio faces south and both house and garden are in beautiful condition. Exclusive. $150,000 and well worth it.

3 BEDROOMS -- MISSION FIELDS -- $32,500
Better hurry. Mission Fields houses in this low price range don't last long. This one is particularly neat and clean. Large living-dining room area. Dead-end street. Extra large lot. Two baths. Double garage. Excellent value at $32,500.

CONDOMINIUM APARTMENT -- $17,500 in Hacienda Carmel -- one bedroom apartment. Ideal for couple or single person. A good buy at $17,500.

2 BEDROOMS ON SCENIC DRIVE -- $58,500
With a clear view of the beach, Carmel Bay and Pebble Beach. Not an old shack, as you'd expect at this (relatively) low, low price, but a charming, sound cottage with beamed-ceiling living room, small dining room, central heat, shake roof, protected patio facing south, and a detached studio room that absolutely defies description.

Lines From Lois

Color Us Blue

We have two homeowners who really MUST sell and we haven't found their buyers yet. You won't ever find us shouting "Sacrifice!" or "Forced Sale!" -- but if there ever was a time when negotiations could be carried out with maximum benefit to a buyer, it is now.

The houses are both 2 story traditionals. Both are planned for entertaining of both the formal and informal king. One is near Del Monte Lodge, a handsome stone house with the most fabulous new gourmet kitchen and very spacious rooms. The owners have moved out of town.

The other is an English country place in Carmel Highlands with a beautiful outlook over the sea. Lovely grounds, including a green house and guest house. Owner's small town house is now ready and waiting impatiently.

The price of $169,500 for the Pebble Beach house and $125,000 for the Highlands home are both very realistic, but we can listen to your propositions, especially on the terms.

We also have a lot in the Carmel Valley Country Club -- one of the best -- and one near Cypress Point in Pebble Beach whose owners, also, really need to sell and are willing to consider all propositions. All four properties are pretty special real estate on pretty special terms. Let us show them to you. That way we won't have to color our faces red!

State offers new service for employers, job seekers

The State Department of Human Resources Development announces the establishment of a Job Information Center at its office located at 480 Webster Street in Monterey.

In the future, current job openings from local employers will be prominently displayed on a board in the office lobby for easy examination by job-ready applicants, who may select from one or more openings matching their qualifications, undergo an appraisal interview and be referred to compatible jobs without delay.

According to James Pullen, manager of the DHRD Employment Service in Monterey, installation of the Center is expected to benefit employers by exposing their job openings to an increased number of qualified applicants. At the same time, Pullen said, use of the Job Information Center by employers will expand employment opportunities for the unemployed or underemployed job-ready worker.

Employers who wish to obtain maximum exposure of their current job openings are urged to call Job Information Center, Telephone 373-0143, Extensions 21 or 23.
